

CATTLE

One of the aristocracy: a Brahman cow.

A noble aspirant to a "best bull of the year" crown marches haughtily to the main arena.

A 10-year-old, pure white Arab stallion is congratulated by his owner on winning the coveted thoroughbreds' blue ribbon.

Proud owners, prospective buyers and curious crowds inspect competing animals kept in individual stalls in a huge, hangar-like barn during the show.

Long known as one of the great beef producers of the world, Argentina once a year parades its prize livestock before the admiring eyes of its own citizens and of buyers from all over the world at the Rural Exposition of Livestock, Agriculture and Industry in Buenos Aires.

It's the biggest outdoor show in the country, and a major social event of the winter season, with the President and the entire stock breeding aristocracy in attendance.

Started over a hundred years ago when Indians roamed the land and owned most of it, and the landed gentry were trying to unify the nation and safeguard their property, the Rural continues to be a glittering showcase of Argentina's wealth and natural resources.

The finest domestic animals in the land are exhibited, appraised by international judges, some from the United States, and auctioned to the highest bidder. In a country where cattle is king and the number one industry, a prize Black Angus bull can bring in as much as $170,000 and a Holland-Argentine cow, bred only here, is more than an object of curiosity; it is a source of national pride and admiration.

This year more than 2,000 head of cattle, 600 sheep, 300 horses and thousands of other farm animals and fowl were exhibited during the show, held each August on 44 specially-equipped acres in Palermo Park. To feed and house these pampered and perfumed prima donnas of the animal world, more than 150 tons of balanced cereals, 440 tons of grass and 1,200 tons of straw were used.

This colorful annual spectacle, dedicated to the improvement of the nation's livestock breeding standards and to its economy, is a festive event not unlike a gigantic country fair, where even the uninitiated city-bred visitor can see the people of Argentina at work and play, and fully appreciate the fruits of their labors.

Begin Work of Reopening Deadly Mine

FARMINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Work begins today on one of the largest recovery operations in coal mining history, the reopening of a mine sealed last November after explosions that killed 78 miners.

Massive air seals of concrete and steel were to be removed from ventilation shafts at Consolidation Coal Co.'s No. 9 mine as experts watched the operation apprehensively. It was expected to take months.

John Aschcraft, West Virginia state mines director, told newsmen: "Never before in the mining industry has such a hazardous undertaking been attempted with so many unknowns."

The unknowns are so varied officials refuse to set a timetable for the several steps in the recovery operation.

Rescuers will first remove deadly methane (natural) gas which has filled the abandoned mine shafts. Methane is freed from pockets in seams of coal during mining.

Jackhammers, armed with nonsparking beryllium points, were to splinter the concrete lids and cranes were to lift huge saucer-like steel discs from atop the shafts.

Once the gas is removed, a ventilation system will be established in the eastern half of the mine, hardly touched by the 16 major explosions.

Siphoning off the gas is dangerous. Methane is extremely explosive when diluted with air in proportions between five and 15 per cent and any spark could result in an explosion.

"That mine is loaded with gas and we dread most the danger of another explosion," said

Questions and Answers on S.S.

If you have any questions regarding social security, I invite your letters. Just send them to Social Security, Ken Hargis, Box 1319, Texarkana, Texas, 75501. Your name will be printed in the Hope Star unless you request that it be withheld.

Some of the most frequently asked questions are shown below.

QUESTION: I've never worked and I draw social security on my husband. Am I entitled to a burial benefit?

ANSWER: No. The lump sum death payment is payable only when the deceased had worked under social security.

QUESTION: Can an employer report one employee's earnings under another employee's name and number? Also, can a husband include his wife's salary from her job in figuring his net earnings from self-employment?

ANSWER: The answer to both questions is "No". If this is done intentionally, it may constitute fraud.

QUESTION: How can I stop my checks when I start working full-time again? How do I start my checks when I stop working?

ANSWER: If you expect to earn more than $1,680 this year, call or visit this office. We have a card form (SSA-1425) to fill out. When you stop working you use the same card form to get your checks started again. At the end of the year, you use card form SSA-777 to report your total earnings. All reports should be made to the nearest social security office.

QUESTION: I will start working this month for $50 a week. Should I report this work to your office? I am receiving social security widow's benefits.

ANSWER: No report is required unless you expect to earn over $1,680 in 1969. If you work only from Sept. to the end of the year for $50 a week, you will have earned approximately $850.00 and no report is necessary. However, if you worked earlier this year, your earnings may be more than $1,680 for the year. If so, you should report now.

QUESTION: I started to receive my retirement benefits at the age of 62. I am now age 65 and can't understand why I don't receive the full amount instead of the reduced benefit. Can you explain this?

ANSWER: At age 62 you had a choice. You could elect to receive a reduced benefit for a longer period of time, or you could wait three years and receive the full amount. Your choice was to start at age 62 so you could receive benefits for 36 months before age 65.

James Westfield of the U.S. Bureau of Mines.

From the eastern base of operations, exploratory probes by five-man, highly trained rescue teams can be made into the heavily damaged western section. The main mine is 7½ miles long, with hundreds of miles of side tunnels.

Westfield said "there are no actual fires in the mine at this time," but he would not rule out the possible presence of "hot spots"—rocks still hot from the fire.

These, he said, could set off the methane as it passes through the explosive stage.

The search of the western half for the 78 miners who died last November will begin after 1,000 tons of limestone dumped down another air shaft to effect a seal are removed.

John Corcoran, president of Consolidation Coal, said it will take "many, many months" to reach the area where the 78 men were believed to be working when the explosion occurred last Nov. 20.

The eye on the reverse of the Great Seal of the United States signifies the "eternal eye of God."

With pure shape mastery, designer Rodrigues pulls off a true silhouette coup with disarming ease in his pants-plus-dress team-up for Milbo (left). The dress is cut along sparse body-conscious lines through the bosom, wrapped to the side and eased in a gentle flare. Easy pants continue the flare to the floor. The color—brightest sun gold. Victor Joris of Cuddlecoat sees his shapely tunic in bright cornflower blue (right) both ways—as a scanty little dress or teamed up with its own straight-legged white pants and feminine crepe shirt. Irish Linen is the fabric used in both these designs.

MONOGAMY IS BEST POLICY

Dear Helen: I have been married 16 years to a man who is a good provider and a doubly good lover. We really love each other and we can also talk out our problems. But on this problem, I must confess, I can't see his point of view.

You see, he says his heart is big enough for two, and he wants to have an affair with a divorced friend of mine. He says this shouldn't hurt our marriage a bit, as he will love us equally. In fact, he even suggested that I babysit her children on the nights he is with her, and she could babysit mine when we want to go out together. Very cosy.

He told me he could sneak around and I might never know, but he prefers honesty, and he would never deceive either of us. He says the other woman loves him so much she will go along, knowing he will never leave me. Well, I said I can't accept this. His answer is that if I make him give up his "second wife" he'll take to drink and probably lose his job.

So it come to this: I don't want to share my husband, but I don't want to live with a drunken bum. He says no matter what happens I will be better off than her, for if he turns into a bum, I'll still have him, and if I learn to share I'll have him.

Please understand that we never have had trouble with being compatible — in every way. What my husband wants is two women to love equally — and he thinks we should be friends, even to going out as a family group, with all seven of our combined children. — POLYGAMY OR LONELINESS?

P.S. She has five children, we have two, and we're both very proud of them. My husband is crazy about his kids, but says hers are spoiled.

Dear P or L: Since you can talk out your problems together, be madly intelligent. Tell your husband AND your "mutual friend" that after careful consideration, you've decided it's monogamy or nothing and if he turns into a drunken bum, well, tough, baby — she can rehabilitate him, not you! Then (if you're a good actress) imply divorce might be the answer: After all, you're not without prospects. . . and he's so great with children he'd probably enjoy being married to the mother of five. . . he'd scarcely have time for booze then, would he? And smile as you say it!

In other words, call "Big Heart's" bluff. Make it clear that while you love him, you and the children won't share him with another woman or a bottle. Sixteen compatible years will do the rest. Here's for 35 more of the same! — H.

Trade Body Flayed by a Member

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission was sharply criticized by one of its own members today as being cloaked in secrecy, bogged down in trivia and lacking in priorities.

"Almost everything the commission does and almost every case it decides is based on stale or inadequate information," added Commissioner Philip El-

FASHION IN THE NEWS

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA)—Summer wardrobes demand greater versatility than do clothes for any other time of year because of the frequent change-of-scene that summer brings.

Whether it's that long-awaited vacation or merely a succession of quick get-away weekends, double-duty clothes are the answer to how to pack for a maximum number of occasions in a minimum amount of space.

This summer it's the tunic-plus-pants wardrobe extender that fills the bill.

Not for a minute does it resemble those trite travel clothes that are fine for packing but never seem to look right at home.

The tunic-plus-pants idea is unusually pertinent this year because of the increasing acceptability of pantsuits for other than strictly sportswear occasions.

Pants outfits in such well-bred fabrics as linen are fine for traveling, for spectator sports, for dinner and casual evening wear. And their tunic tops by themselves are great little dash-about dresses or even swimsuit cover-ups. They're right in step with the sleeked-down and leggy look of summer.

Ginori does summer's great put-together in a safari mood — a knee-clearing tunic dress in natural Irish linen with outsize pockets and decorative stitching mated to precisely tailored white trousers.

Victor Joris of Cuddlecoat gives his tunic deft shaping in cornflower blue to wear on its own or with white trousers and the most feminine sort of crepe skirt.

Designer Rodrigues of Milbo takes the idea into late day with similarly flared pants and tunic in brightest marigold.

It's a case of one good idea expanding to three as pants and tunic go their own separate ways and also join forces for summer's winning fashion combo.

Elman's criticism was contained in a report by a Senate subcommittee and although he has said as much before, his latest attack set the stage for another chapter in one of Washington's oldest major feuds.

Also appearing in the report by the Judiciary subcommittee on administrative practices were the views of FTC Chairman Paul Rand Dixon and — as has been the custom over the past few years — they were almost diametrically opposed to Elman.

The hearing will be the first in a series on all the regulatory agencies planned by the subcommittee which is chaired by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

SEATED AT HER AGING UPRIGHT, Mrs. Rosemary Brown takes "dictation" from one of the classical composers who have gone to the Great Conservatory in the Sky. She claims she is in touch with Beethoven, Brahms, Liszt, Bach, Schumann, Debussy and Rachmaninoff.

Her Music Is Out of This World

By TOM CULLEN
NEA European Correspondent

LONDON—(N.E.A.)—"I'm still afraid to talk to Beethoven, but Liszt is different—I feel I can talk freely with him."

Mrs. Rosemary Brown, a widow in her 40s, talks about the great composers as though they are next-door neighbors who are in the habit of dropping in for tea. And such very nearly is the case.

Mrs. Brown claims that Beethoven and Liszt have been appearing to her regularly for the past five years and have been dictating new compositions, which she takes down on the piano. Brahms, Bach, Schumann, Debussy and Rachmaninoff have been appearing to her as well.

Altogether, Mrs. Brown, a pleasant woman with chestnut hair, has noted down quite a volume of ghost compositions, ranging from Rachmaninoff piano-duets to Chopin fantasy-impromptus, none of which has ever been heard before. And there is much more music to come, she says.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Brown's revelations have created something of a furor here in Britain. She has been the subject of three television documentaries and a long-playing record of some of the compositions she has rescued from the spirit world is about to be issued.

What makes Rosemary Brown's revelations have created something of a furor here in Britain. She has been the subject of three television documentaries and a long-playing record of some of the compositions she has rescued from the spirit world is about to be issued.

From earliest childhood, Mrs. Brown appears to have been endowed with extra-sensory perception. As a girl of 7, she heard heavenly music in her mind, and "an elderly man with long flowing white hair" whom she now identifies as Liszt appeared to her and told her that he would one day dictate beautiful music to her.

It took a couple of broken ribs to make Liszt's prophecy come true. Mrs. Brown slipped and broke her ribs in March, 1964, while working in the school cafeteria. "I couldn't do any housework because of my accident, so my mind turned to the piano, which I hadn't touched for 12 years. My playing was so rusty that it was like starting all over again," she recalls. It was then that Liszt appeared to her in a vision and dictated 12 relatively simple pieces of music. Liszt, in turn, introduced Chopin, and soon Mrs. Brown had about a dozen composers all clamoring to break through the sound barrier and to have their works heard by the waiting world.

Brown's story so remarkable is that she has no special talent as a musician and has had almost no musical training. She has not even heard very much classical music.

In fact, she and her late husband, who was ill during most of their married life, were so poor that they could not even afford a radio or a record-player, let alone go to concerts. When her husband died in 1961, Mrs. Brown had to sling hash in a school cafeteria in order to support her two children.

Today she lives in a decaying flat in southwest London. The ivory keys on the upright piano which belonged to her grandmother are yellow, like discolored teeth. On top of the piano are small plaster busts of her idols—Wagner, Schubert, and Liszt.

She says she does not need to go into a trance in order to receive music from the dead. It can come to her while she is out shopping. Recently she was being interviewed by the BBC when Liszt dropped in and dictated 20 bars of music right in the midst of the recording session.

By now the great composers have become so familiar to Mrs. Brown that she sometimes scolds them when they dictate too fast, or the music is unclear. Recently she became quite exasperated with Beethoven. "Beethoven was dictating to me and everything was going quite smoothly when suddenly he stopped," she explains. "They've got to learn how to sustain concentration," she says with just a trace of annoyance in her voice.

From earliest childhood, Mrs. Brown appears to have been endowed with extra-sensory perception. As a girl of 7, she heard heavenly music in her mind, and "an elderly man with long flowing white hair" whom she

"TAKE my HAND"

"Take My Hand, Daddy!" has been the age-old cry of children the world over. They were looking for security and protection. Somehow that big hand around their small one gave a thousand times more reassurance than all the words in the world could give.

Yes, the outstretched hand from child to dad is a simple gesture of surrender meaning, "I am giving my life to you because I trust you and know you will protect me." From Dad to child, it is a gesture of love which means, "I am here and will shield you."

Just hold on tight."

Unfortunately, children grow up and no longer need the outstretched hand. But no one grows so big that they no longer need the nail-scarred hand. When the outstretched hand is the nail-scarred hand we should never let it go. It is the best kind of security

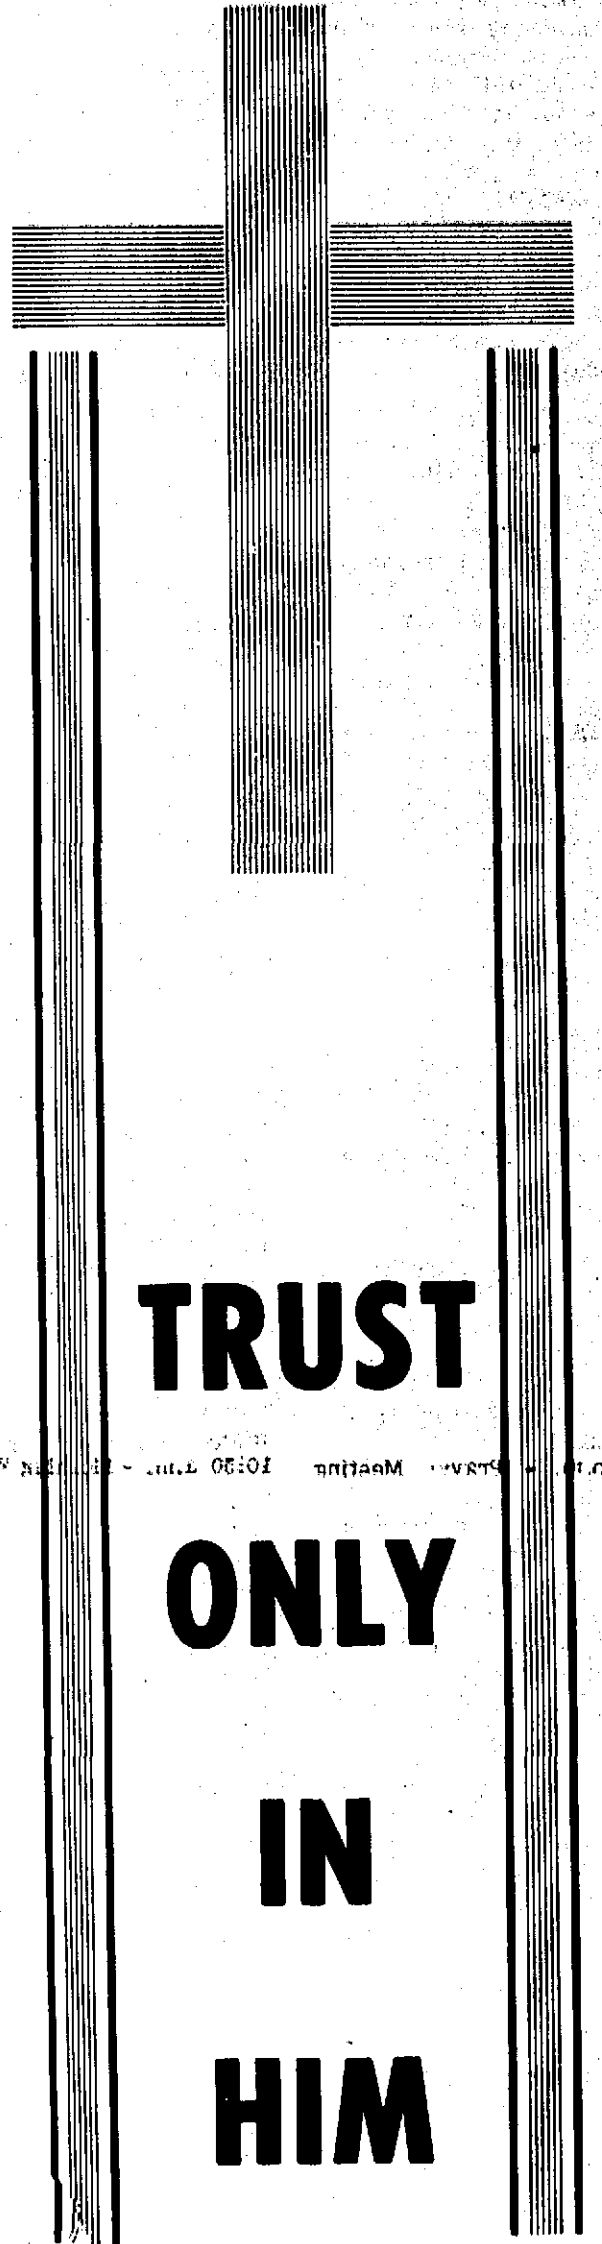

... the divine security, born out of perfect love.

We may no longer need to say, "Take My Hand Daddy," but we will always need to say, "Take My Hand, Father."

HOPE NEWSPAPER HISTORY:
The 1929 consolidation joined the two principal newspaper lines dating back to within five years of Hope's incorporation in 1875.

1899 — Star of Hope founded as a weekly by Claude Mc-Corkle; converted to an evening daily by his son, Ed. McCorkle, publishing until the 1929 consolidation.

The opposition line:
1880 — Hope News founded by Lowry Brothers.

1883 — Sold to Withers & Johnson, name changed to Hope Telegraph.

1883 — Later in same year resold to Claude McCorkle and renamed Hope Mercury.

1884 — Sold to James H. Betts, who named it Hope Gazette, under which name it was published continuously until 1922, published by Betts, J. L. Tullis, and Col. W. W.
Folsom the last-named dying in 1916.

1916 — Purkins & Gates bought the weekly Gazette and made it a companion paper to their new daily, Arkansas Evening Herald
— but both papers suspended in 1922.

1926 — Plant was revived by Curtis Cannon as the weekly
Hempstead County Review.

1927 — Cannon sold plant to
D. A. Gean, who established the morning Hope Daily Press.

1929 — C. E. Palmer and A. H.
Washburn consolidated The Star and the Press as Hope Star, with Palmer as president and Washburn secretary-treasurer.

1957 — Following Mr. Palmer's death Mrs. Palmer became president.

1969 — With Mrs. Palmer's retirement from Star Publishing Co. Washburn became 76 per cent owner and president — balance 24 per cent being held by Texarkana Newspapers, Inc.

Some of the problems in Victor Mollo's "How Good Is Your Bridge?" are very tough. Others, like the one shown today, are extremely simple.

Even the simple ones teach a lesson. Thus, there is nothing wrong with South's six-spade contract except that six no-trump would count 10 points more and be absolutely safe while South managed to go down one at six spades.

The play was short and not sweet. South won the heart lead and led a trump. East was in with the ace and led a second heart. West ruffed and that was that!

We should forget about the possibility of reaching six no-trump. It is conceivable that some pair of bridge players in the world might find some way to get to the no-trump slam. With the actual four-heart opening it is practically impossible.

We should also forget the fact that at the table South managed to go down one at six spades.

Somehow or other, no matter how much of a desperado East might be, he would not be likely to open four hearts without both the ace of spades and a seven-card trump suit. Therefore, any reasonably careful South would worry about the possibility of a heart ruff and guard against it by playing the king of clubs at trick two and cover with dummy's ace. Then discard the king of hearts on the queen of clubs at trick three.

Strangely enough South suffered from an embarrassment of riches. If he had held a low heart instead of the king, he would surely have taken the quick discard on the queen of clubs and made the contract.

Broyles Critical of Practice

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — After watching the Arkansas Razorbacks practice almost two hours Thursday, coach Frank Broyles said he was glad the Razorbacks have another week to go before the season opener against Oklahoma State.

The second-ranked Razorbacks play OSU Sept. 20 at Little Rock.
"We're hitting on only three cylinders instead of eight," Broyles said. "The offense is only running one out of every three plays right and the defense is executing their assignments on only one out of every three plays."

Liquor Fair Trade Law Attacked

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — A past president of the Arkansas Restaurant Association says the state's fair trade liquor law prevents restaurant owners from making a "fair profit" on the sale of mixed drinks.

Coy Theobolt of Hot Springs, owner of Coy's Steak House, made the statement Thursday, adding that restaurant owners with mixed-drink permits may ask the 1971 legislature to repeal the fair trade liquor law. He said that because of the law, the state's seven wholesale liquor dealers "have had a mighty sweet thing for a long time because they could charge about any price they wanted."

The markup on liquor is set at 13 per cent above cost for wholesale dealers and 30 per cent above cost for retail dealers by the law. Theobolt said he thought that without the law, the price would be at least $2 a fifth cheaper.

'Freedom of Choice' Hit by Finch

WASHINGTON (AP) — Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch, under attack both in and out of the government for his civil rights stand, has put the Nixon administration on record against a controversial House-passed "freedom of choice" school desegregation measure.

In announcing opposition to the amendment proposed by Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., 1967, and ranked the state ahead of Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina at that time.

South Carolina's per capita rate for fiscal 1968 rose to $201, Mississippi's per capita rate was $204 and Alabama's was $205. All other states had per capita state and local taxes of $227 or more, ranging up to the $503 figure of New York.

Arkansas' rate should increase in fiscal 1969 since the study was made before the legislature's enactment of part of the new state taxes requested by Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller. The legislature approved about $22 million in new state taxes, although Rockefeller had asked for a tax increase of $95 million.

The average per capita rate increase in all states was $29, with California leading the way with a $74 increase.

By putting the administration flatly against the Whitten amendment, Finch climaxed a fight sources indicate was under way on the eve of the House vote on the measure.

At that time, sources said, the welfare secretary was prepared to issue a strong public condemnation of the amendment. But Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell reportedly quashed the statement and urged House Republican leaders in a private meeting to assume a hands-off stance.

The NAACP Legal Defense Fund Tuesday called the administration's civil rights stance a "policy of deliberate confusion."

Claim State Tax Lowest in America

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Commerce Clearing House in Chicago says the per capita state and local taxes in Arkansas for the fiscal year ended last July 1 increased on average $1, dropping Arkansas below the other 49 states.

The report said the increase in Arkansas was the smallest in the nation and left Arkansas with a figure of $200 for fiscal 1967, and ranked the state ahead of Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina at that time.

Troops Work To Complete Belfast Wall

By COLIN FRIST
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — After averting another clash between Roman Catholics and Protestants, British troops worked today to complete the "Belfast Wall," a steel and barbed wire fence designed to separate the neighborhoods of the two groups.

The British hope the fence will persuade both Catholics and Protestants to dismantle the barricades they erected after last month's rioting.

The Catholic Civil Defense Committee of "Free Belfast" meets tonight to decide whether the barriers should come down. Informants said the barriers probably would be removed after a face-saving agreement with the army that would allow leaders of the enclave to take them down voluntarily.

Details of the agreement were said to have been worked out between a "Free Belfast" delegation that met with British Home Secretary James Callaghan in London Friday.

An army spokesman said trouble between the two groups Friday night began when a crowd of Protestants approached British troops and "bashed and banged the roofs and windows" of trucks they were driving. He added, "The soldiers inside decided caution was the better part of valor and moved away."

But the crowd then advanced on a Catholic bar in a predominantly Protestant neighborhood, smashed in the door, broke all the windows and threw two gasoline bombs inside.

Catholics began gathering to retaliate, and more Protestants began streaming into the area. Finally, the army spokesman said, British troops arrived and the crowds dispersed.

The bar is on the same street where a Methodist church and a junior high school were heavily damaged by fire Thursday night.

Although there were disagreements over the location of several sections, most of the wall was completed without much trouble.

The fence of barbed wire piled six feet high is strung between a double row of steel stakes cemented into the ground. It is about a mile long and runs between the Protestant Shankill district and the Catholic Falls Road area.

Army guards patrol the roads at both ends of the fence day and night, check every vehicle in and out, and disperse any crowds that gather.

Bomb Raids Continue After Halt

By GEORGE ESPEY
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Bombing raids over South Vietnam are back to normal today, but Washington is directing them, military spokesmen said.

The B-52s resumed their attacks after a 36-hour halt ordered by President Nixon to test the intentions of the Communist Command following the three-day cease-fire for the National North Vietnam President Ho Chi Minh.

Two waves of bombers dumped 300 tons of explosives 27 miles northeast of Saigon, another mission struck base camps along the Cambodian border 98 miles northeast of the capital, and two missions hit the central coast near Da Nang.

Spokesmen declined to speculate whether the B-52s would continue to maintain their average of about 50 sorties—one flight by one bomber—a day over South Vietnam.

One spokesman said, "It looks like operations are back to normal for the time being. I have no idea what is going on in Washington. The B-52s are being controlled out of there. We'll just continue on a day-to-day basis."

The decision to resume the raids came at a time when communiques indicated that fighting appeared to have tapered off across South Vietnam.

U.S. headquarters reported eight Americans injured in 34 rocket and mortar attacks overnight.

The U.S. Command also reported two terrorist attacks in Saigon, two shelling incidents in the demilitarized zone Friday and one flight 28 miles northwest of Saigon in which U.S. helicopters killed six enemy.

Since the cease-fire ended Thursday, U.S. troops reported killing 144 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in six battles north of Saigon and near the Cambodian border.

The most serious shelling hit Dien Ban, a district town about 10 miles south of Da Nang. A barrage of 22 mortar shells landed on a refugee camp, wounding 18 civilians.

An American helicopter crashed into a mountain Friday night near Qui Nhon, 275 miles northeast of Saigon, killing all four U.S. crewmen, three South Korean intelligence officers and a Viet Cong defector.

South Korean headquarters said the helicopter crashed in bad weather after developing engine trouble. U.S. headquarters listed the cause as unknown and said the crash was being investigated.

In Washington, the White House disclosed that President Nixon had ordered that the B-52 raids be resumed because the level of enemy activity now has reverted to pretruce levels.

The announcement of the bombing halt and its end came as Nixon and his top diplomatic and military advisers met Friday for a full-scale review of the Vietnam war.

Auto Suit Settled Out of Court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Justice Department has agreed to settle out of court its antitrust suit charging the nation's automakers with conspiring to delay installation of antismog devices on new model cars.

The accord announced Thursday would require automobile manufacturers to develop antismog devices independently and in competition with each other. With court approval, the agreement would become binding in 30 days.

The decree was signed by General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp., American Motors Corp. and the Automobile Manufacturers Association, a trade group.

In Detroit, Chrysler and General Motors denied they had taken part in any agreement to restrain development of antismog devices. They said they were entering into the settlement to avoid long and costly litigation that would delay development of emission control systems.

Los Angeles County supervisors said they would try to intervene in the case before the 30-day deadline, thereby keeping the suit alive and nullifying the accord.

The pact was announced simultaneously by Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell in Washington and Asst. Atty. Gen. Richard McLaren in Los Angeles. The agreement, a proposed consent decree, was filed in U.S. District Court here.

However, county supervisors and Rep. George E. Brown, D-Calif., said the pact permits automakers to evade a court suit without laying down a specific timetable for the development of auto exhaust control systems. Seventeen other congressmen opposed the pact as word of its existence spread through Washington.

As detailed in a news conference by Mitchell, the agreement prohibits automakers from developing smog control devices in concert and bans them from agreeing among themselves when to equip the cars with the antipollution devices.

Governor's Son Has a Police Plan

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A proposal calling for a State Police cadet training program has been submitted to State Police Director Ralph Scott by Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller's 21-year-old son.

Scott said Thursday that Winthrop Paul Rockefeller's plan would include several months of on-the-job training and a two-week course at the Arkansas Law Enforcement Training Academy at Camden.

Scott said there would have to be enabling legislation before the program could be undertaken, but that it needed to be implemented as soon as possible.

Rockefeller said he urged his son to formally present the plan to Scott and that he was delighted in his son's interest. The governor said he hoped federal assistance for the program could be obtained.

Training in highway safety, accident investigation procedure, driver licensing, first aid, use of firearms, radio communications, traffic control, report writing and case preparation would be included in the two-week course.

An introduction to criminal law, problems related to the illegal use of drugs, Arkansas history and geography, race relations and study methods will also be included.

Mayors' Ire Raised by Fund Cutoff

By G. C. THELEN Jr.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 300 mayors and their allies in Congress are growing angry with the Nixon administration's four-month freeze on all applications for stepped-up urban renewal assistance.

Officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development maintain they are working feverishly to lift the freeze and save the Neighborhood Development Program — NDP. But they have yet to develop a spending formula that satisfies the President's inflation-conscious Budget Bureau, which imposed the freeze April 30.

As a result, by one congressional count, some 47 applicant cities and counties stand to lose renewal credit this month for $24 million in improvements already made. Hundreds of others are losing construction time awaiting a decision from the administration.
